ITALIAN FAUCET FASHIONED FOR THE AMERICAN BATH

ROHL Cisal Bath Collection Faucet: AY51

Fashioned in a picturesque village in Northern Italy, ROHL's new AY51 from the Cisal Bath Collection of faucets combines 21st century technology with classic Italian design. Distinguished by its elegant single lever control, the AY51 allows users to effortlessly adjust water temperature and pressure with one hand. A statement of authentic luxury, this graceful lavatory faucet is attractively proportioned, with a single-hole design that frees-up valuable counter space.

Undoubtedly, ROHL's AY51 sets itself apart through a combination of smart features including an interpretation of the classic C-style spout that provides an ample reach of 5-1/8 inches along with superior materials and workmanship. Crafted of solid brass, the AY51 is outfitted with a washerless ceramic-disc cartridge to ensure smooth handle movement and drip-free performance over time.

The AY51 boasts a prominent height of 6-3/8 inches, providing more than enough room for hand washing. One of the many aesthetically pleasing attributes of ROHL's single hole faucet is the 'pop-up' handle, discretely located behind the spout—allowing it to be hidden when not in use, but still easily accessible. The gracefully decorated handle accentuates the clean and contemporary feel while staying true to its classic Italian origins.

Of course, the AY51 coordinates with ROHL's complete Cisal Bath Collection including centerset and three-hole widespread faucets, Roman tub fillers, thermostatic and pressure balanced shower systems and luxury shower heads – all to fully furnish a premium in-home bath/spa.
